

① Classical complement activation

IgM and IgG antibodies bound to the cell surface trigger the classical complement cascade which leads to the formation of the membrane attack complex and lysis of the capillary endothelial cells.